

Marine Corps Community Services (MCCS) represents the future of taking care of Marines and their families in the 21st century. It is the merging of the capabilities of previous support systems such as Morale, Welfare and Recreation, Family Services, and Voluntary Education.

The programs and services delivered through MCCS directly affect the combat readiness of Marines, assigned Sailors, and their families through physical conditioning (leisure recreation, fitness, sports, health/wellness), mental conditioning (voluntary education, libraries, and a variety of classes), and social/emotional conditioning (family programs, Single Marine Programs, retail goods, and quality of life services). Organized to directly assist the leadership as a force multiplier, various MCCS programs and services are funded by monies appropriated by Congress, but a large number are funded by revenue-generating programs such as exchanges, bowling centers, gas stations, and barber shops.

MCCS answers the needs of Marine commanders through its five pillars. They are:

Marine Corps Family Team Building Lifestyles, Insights, Networking, Knowledge, Skills Prevention and Relationship Enhancement Program Community Liaison Office	Key Volunteer Network Spouse Leadership Seminar Chaplain’s Religious Enrichment Development Operations

Personal Services Treatment and Counseling Life Long Learning	Prevention and Education Mobility Child and Youth
